“Homoeopathy has evolved through centuries into so many different strategies.

Through my experience of experimenting with all these I have realized that there is a common theme through all these strategies.

I would like to share this fascinating study of how understanding this concept has simplified my practice where I can now choose an individual strategy to suit my patient instead of fitting them to a strategy I want to apply.

In the presentation I will include a structure of the different possible strategies in homoeopathy and the study of these in detail with their application to suit our patient's needs with paper case examples.

I will also discuss how the understanding of miasms has evolved and depending on your chosen strategy, how to apply them in your cases.” Shilpa Bhouraskar 2010

We look forward to hearing the new strategies in homoeopathy Shilpa has been working with. For more information on Shilpa and her work go to Shilpa Bhouraskar graduated as a Bachelor of Homoeopathic Medicine and Surgery from India in 1997, which is a medical degree in India.

Further she trained under some of the most experienced homoeopaths in Homeopathic hospitals and Clinics and practised as a homoeopathic GP in India before she moved to Sydney, Australia in 2004.

She discovered her passion for teaching soon after and is attached to most major Homoeopathic and Natural therapy colleges in Sydney as a lecturer and a clinical supervisor teaching homoeopathic and medical subjects. Gathering from her wealth of experience she has been popular amongst her students for simplifying and deepening the understanding of complex medical and homoeopathic subjects.

She also runs her regular mentoring sessions for newly graduated homoeopaths to boost their confidence, fine tune their homoeopathic skills and reduce their confusion helping them find their own way of homoeopathic practise.

She is also the author of the very first Australian homoeopathic software 'HomeoQuest'. Her website is www.shilpabhouraskar.com
